President

For this month of September I'm writing about Sharon Christa McAuliffe: September 2, 1948 – January 28, 1986.) In 1985, she was selected from more than 11,000 applicants to participate in the NASA Teacher in Space Project and was scheduled to become the first teacher in space. As a member of mission STS-51-L, she was planning to conduct experiments and teach two lessons from Space Shuttle Challenger.

On July 1, 1985, she was announced as one of the 10 finalists, and on July 7 she traveled to Johnson Space Center for a week of thorough medical examinations and briefings about space flight. The finalists were interviewed by an evaluation committee composed of senior NASA officials, and the committee made recommendations to NASA Administrator James M. Beggs for the primary and backup candidates for the Teacher in Space Project. On July 19, 1985, Vice President George H. W. Bush announced that she had been selected for the position. Another teacher, Barbara Morgan, served as her backup. According to Mark Travis of the Concord Monitor, it was her manner that set her apart from the other candidates. NASA official Alan Ladwig said "she had an infectious enthusiasm", and NASA psychiatrist Terrence McGuire told New Woman magazine that "she was the most broad-based, best-balanced person of the 10." On January 28, 1986, the shuttle broke apart 73 seconds after launch. After her death, schools and scholarships were named in her honor, and in 2004 she was posthumously awarded the Congressional Space Medal of Honor. On that day, President Ronald Reagan spoke to our nation.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, I'd planned to speak to you tonight to report on the state of the Union, but the events of earlier today have led me to change those plans. Today is a day for mourning and remembering. Nancy and I are pained to the core by the tragedy of the shuttle Challenger. We know we share this pain with all of the people of our country. This is truly a national loss.

Nineteen years ago, almost to the day, we lost three astronauts in a terrible accident on the ground. But, we've never lost an astronaut in flight; we've never had a tragedy like this. And perhaps we've forgotten the courage it took for the crew of the shuttle; but they, the Challenger Seven, were aware of the dangers, but overcame them and did their jobs brilliantly. We mourn seven heroes: Michael Smith, Dick Scobee, Judith Resnik, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka, Gregory Jarvis, and Christa McAuliffe. We mourn their loss as a nation together. For the families of the seven, we cannot bear, as you do, the full impact of this tragedy. But we feel the loss, and we're thinking about you so very much. Your loved ones were daring and brave, and they had that special grace, that special spirit that says, 'Give me a challenge and I'll meet it with joy.' They had a hunger to explore the universe and discover its truths. They wished to serve, and they did. They served all of us.

We've grown used to wonders in this century. It's hard to dazzle us. But for twenty-five years the United States space program has been doing just that. We've grown used to the idea of space, and perhaps we forget that we've only just begun. We're still pioneers. They, the members of the Challenger crew, were pioneers."

And I want to say something to the schoolchildren of America who were watching the live coverage of the shuttle's takeoff. I know it is hard to understand, but sometimes painful things like this happen. It's all part of the process of exploration and discovery. It's all part of taking a chance and expanding man's horizons. The future doesn't belong to the fainthearted; it belongs to the brave. The Challenger crew was pulling us into the future, and we'll continue to follow them. I've always had great faith in and respect for our space program, and what happened today does nothing to diminish it. We don't hide our space program. We don't keep secrets and cover things up. We do it all up front and in public. That's the way freedom is, and we wouldn't change it for a minute. We'll continue our quest in space. There will be more shuttle flights and more shuttle crews and, yes, more volunteers, more civilians, more teachers in space. Nothing ends here; our hopes and our journeys continue. I want to add that I wish I could talk to every man and woman who works for NASA or who worked on this mission and tell them: Your dedication and professionalism have moved and impressed us for decades. And we know of your anguish. We share it. There's a coincidence today. On this day 390 years ago, the great explorer Sir Francis Drake died aboard ship off the coast of Panama. In his lifetime the great frontiers were the oceans, and a historian later said, 'He lived by the sea, died on it, and was buried in it.' Well, today we can say of the Challenger crew: Their dedication was, like Drake's, complete.

The crew of the space shuttle Challenger honored us by the manner in which they lived their lives. We will never forget them, nor the last time we saw them, this morning, as they prepared for the journey and waved goodbye and 'slipped the surly bonds of earth' to 'touch the face of God.'

Thank you."

Steve Kirk

“September is a month to remember.” When I was a kid, school started the day after Labor Day, football season started the first weekend of September (it was before the NFL had televised preseason games) and the pennant race was on in Major League Baseball. I was born in Newark, New Jersey and my dad had spent some time playing minor league baseball in the New York Yankees farm system in Newark. As a result, I have been a fan of the Yankees (in case you have not heard) since I was born. In fact, from the time I was 5 until I was 15, the Yankees played in 9 of the 10 World Series through those years (1955-1964). For me, back in the day, when September rolled around, I was sure of a couple of things. First, I was going to school and second, the Yankees were in a pennant race and were sure to get to the World Series. I loved baseball then and I still do now.

Recently, I was reunited with a childhood friend (we had not seen each other in over 40 years). We grew up together, along with my two brothers, his two brothers and another set of brothers that lived in the house between our houses. He and his brothers hated the Yankees and were NY Giants and NY Mets fans (ugh). We would fight and argue over which was the better team (even though everyone knew it was the Yankees) or who was better Mickey Mantle or Willie Mays (Mantle baseball cards or run around the neighborhood playing “hide and seek” or “chase” (a game where kids ran around chasing each other). We would see who could catch the most fireflies (lightening bugs). In September, we were conflicted over whether or not we would play whiffle ball or touch football in the street.

This friend sent me an article that was printed in our hometowns local newspaper. He said he thought of me when he read it and wanted to pass it on. It was entitled “What is a baseball glove?”

“A baseball glove is a beginning and an ending; a boy’s first sure step towards manhood; a man’s final, lingering hold on youth; it is a promise...and memory. A baseball glove is the dusty badge of belonging, the tanned and oiled mortar of team and camaraderie; in its creases and scuffs lodge sunburned afternoons freckled with thrills, the excited hum of competition, cheers that burst like skyrockets. A baseball glove is a thousand and one names and moments strung like white and crimson banners in the vast stadium of memory. A baseball glove is the leather of adventure, worthy successor to the cowboy’s holster, the trooper’s saddle and the buckskin laces of the frontier scout; it is combat, heroics, and victory...a place to smack a fist or snuff a rally. Above all, a baseball glove is the union of father and son, boy and friends, man and men: it is union beyond language, creed or color.”

I did a little research on this article and it turns out that Rawlings used this quote on an ad in the mid 1960’s with Mickey Mantle endorsing their product (see the picture). It was later put on the boxes in which the gloves were packaged.

So what are your memories of September like? Why not write a short article about them and send them to me or Steve and we will print them. Let’s get to know each other a little better.

John DeMauro

INTENT TO FILE CLAIM INFORMATION

By Mitchell Hinkle, Senior National Service Officer

With the ever changing Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) claims system, the VA is always trying to assist the veterans with new and improved ways to file claims.

In the past, the VA used what was call an informal claim. An informal claim was in general any communication or action that may have showed an intent to apply for benefits VA laws. The VA recognized the informal claims that were received prior to March 24, 2015. The type of claims was in general claims for service connection or increase of service-connected conditions, claims for non-service-connected pension, if a veteran was of war time periods or claims for widows or survivors of veterans for Death Indemity Compensation (DIC) or widows' pension.

If a veteran or survivor filed a VA claim by application and the application was not completed properly, the VA may have considered this also an informal claim. The informal claim must have identified the benefit being sought, like example compensation, pension or increases.

The new system is now called INTENT TO FILE. There is also a VA form 21-0966 that is used for this process. The Intent to File must contain:

   enough personal information to identify the Veteran or claimant if not the veteran.

   An election of the general type of benefit(s) that is being sought, example: compensation, pension, or survivors' benefits

   Application must have a signature

A veteran or survivor can notify the VA of their intent to file by written correspondence, electronically by eBenefits or by visiting the local VA Regional Office in person.

The VA will only recognized one intent to file claim per general benefit at any given time. Once you have filed an intent claim, the official application such as a VA form 21-526ez, application for compensation, VA form 21-527, application for non-service-connected pension or VA form 21P-534 application for DIC or widows' pension must be received within one year. This is needed to protect the effective date of claim if the benefit sought, is approved. Once the official application is received, the intent to file claim will no longer be active.

If you have any questions or concerns regarding this information or any other VA entitlements, please contact your local PVA Service Office for assistance.

Did You Know?

George Washington didn't wear a wig; the ponytail and perfect curls were all his. He turned his brown hair white by using lots of powder, so he kept his ponytail in a silk bag to keep it from smearing across his back when he was dancing with the ladies (which he liked to do).

James Earl Jones once traveled across the United States and used his legendary Darth Vader voice to talk to truck drivers on his CB radio... but it freaked them out so much, he had to stop doing it.

In an effort to keep our members informed, I would like you all, to know about the chapter sports program. Liesl has been working with us throughout much of last year. She is leaving us to finish her Master's Degree. We wish her the best and thank her for the time she did share with us. Liesl was a great asset while she was here and everyone who was fortunate enough to interact with her, was better for it.

From Roger:

Thank you Liesl for your diligent work as Interim Sports Director. We wish you all the best as you look to the future.

Thank you John, Joanne and our board for pitching in to help.

Roger Sack will be working here the chapter in a volunteer capacity. As always, we feel blessed to have him here coaching and working with our members. I gladly welcome him and his expertise.

As we look forward to this next year. We would like to hear from you as to your Sports and Recreation ideas. We are excited to add new things, while we continue to grow our existing sports.
