Sally Ride (died July 23, 2012) was an American astronaut and physicist. Born in Los Angeles, she joined NASA in 1978, and in 1983 became the first American woman in space. She was the third woman in space overall, after USSR cosmonauts Valentina Tereshkova (1963) and Svetlana Savitskaya (1982). Ride remains the youngest American astronaut to have traveled to space, having done so at the age of 32.

Ride attended Portola Junior High (now Portola Middle School) and then Birmingham High School before graduating from the private Westlake School for Girls in Los Angeles on a scholarship. In addition to being interested in science, she was a nationally ranked tennis player. She even took a break from college to try and pursue a professional tennis career. Ride attended Swarthmore College for three semesters, took physics courses at University of California, Los Angeles, and then entered Stanford University as a junior, graduating with a bachelor's degree in English and physics. At Stanford, she earned a master's degree in 1975 and a PhD in physics in 1978 while doing research on the interaction of X-rays with the interstellar medium. Astrophysics and free electron lasers were her specific areas of study.

Ride was selected to be an astronaut as part of NASA Astronaut Group 8, in 1978, the first class to select women. She applied after seeing an advertisement in the Stanford student newspaper, and was one of only 35 people selected out of the 8000 applications. After graduating training in 1979, becoming eligible to work as a mission specialist she served as the ground-based capsule communicator (CapCom) for the second and third Space Shuttle flights, and helped develop the Space Shuttle's "Canadarm" robot arm. Prior to her first space flight, Ride was subject to media attention due to her gender. During a press conference, she was asked questions such as, "Will the flight affect your reproductive organs?" and "Do you weep when things go wrong on the job?" Despite this and the historical significance of the mission, Ride insisted that she saw herself in only one way—as an astronaut. On June 18, 1983, Ride became the first American woman in space as a crew member on Space Shuttle Challenger for STS-7. Many of the people attending the launch wore T-shirts bearing the words "Ride, Sally Ride", lyrics from Wilson Pickett's song "Mustang Sally".¹ The purpose of the mission was to deploy two communications satellites and the first Shuttle Pallet Satellite (SPAS-1), conduct experiments within the cargo bay, and test the TDRS satellite. SPAS-1 was successfully deployed, underwent experiments, then recollected and brought back to Earth. Part of Ride's job was to operate the robotics arm to deploy and retrieve SPAS-1. Ride was named to the Rogers Commission (the presidential commission investigating the Challenger disaster) and headed its subcommittee on operations. She was the only person to serve on both of the panels investigating Shuttle accidents (those for the Challenger accident and later the Columbia disaster). Following the Challenger investigation, Ride was assigned to NASA headquarters in Washington, D.C., where she led NASA's first strategic planning effort, authored a report titled "NASA Leadership and America's Future in Space" and founded NASA's Office of Exploration.

According to Roger Boisjoly, who was one of the engineers that warned of the technical problems that led to the Challenger disaster, after the entire workforce of Morton-Thiokol shunned him, Ride was the only public figure to show support for him when he went public with his pre-disaster warnings. Sally Ride hugged him publicly to show her support for his efforts.

After Sally Ride's death in 2012, General Donald Kutyna revealed that she had discreetly provided him with key information about O-rings (namely, that they become stiff at low temperatures) that eventually led to identification of the cause of the explosion.

Ride wrote or co-wrote seven books on space aimed at children, with the goal of encouraging children to study science.

She was a member of the Review of United States Human Space Flight Plans Committee, an independent review requested by the Office of Science and Technology Policy (OSTP) on May 7, 2009.

Her obituary revealed that her partner of 27 years was Tam O'Shaughnessy, a professor emerita of school psychology at San Diego State University and childhood friend, who met her when both were aspiring tennis players. O'Shaughnessy was also a science writer and, later, the co-founder of Sally Ride Science. O'Shaughnessy served as the Chief Executive Officer and Chair of the Board of Sally Ride Science. They wrote six acclaimed children's science books together.

Their relationship was revealed by the company and confirmed by her sister, who said she chose to keep her personal life private, including her sickness and treatments.

Changing Lives through Successful Planning

Executive Director

77 years ago, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed into law the original GI Bill. At the time the bill was considered one of the most significant pieces of legislation ever produced by the federal government—one that impacted the country socially, economically and politically. However, like many other bills that involved veterans, it almost never came to pass.

The Servicemen’s Readjustment Act of 1944 nearly stalled in Congress as members of the House and Senate debated provisions of the controversial bill. Signed into law by President Franklin D. Roosevelt on June 22, 1944, this act, also known as the GI Bill, provided veterans of the Second World War funds for college education, unemployment insurance, and housing. Some shunned the idea of paying unemployed Veterans $20 a week because they thought it diminished their incentive to look for work. Others questioned the concept of sending battle-hardened Veterans to colleges and universities, a privilege then reserved for the rich. Despite their differences, all agreed something must be done to help Veterans assimilate into civilian life. Much of the urgency stemmed from a desire to avoid the missteps following World War I, when discharged Veterans got little more than a $60 allowance and a train ticket home. During the Great Depression, some Veterans found it difficult to make a living. Congress tried to intervene by passing the World War Adjusted Act of 1924, commonly known as the Bonus Act. The law provided a bonus based on the number of days served. But there was a catch: most Veterans wouldn’t see a dime for 20 years. A group of Veterans marched on Washington, D.C., in the summer of 1932 to demand full payment of their bonuses. When they didn’t get it, most went home. But some decided to stick around until they got paid. They were later kicked out of town following a bitter standoff with U.S. troops. The incident marked one of the greatest periods of unrest our nation’s capital had ever known, until January 6, 2021.

died when Senate and House members came together to debate their versions. Both groups agreed on the education and home loan benefits, but were deadlocked on the unemployment provision. Ultimately, Rep. John Gibson of Georgia was rushed in to cast the tie-breaking vote. The Senate approved the final form of the bill on June 12, and the House followed on June 13. President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed it into law on June 22, 1944. The Veterans Administration (VA) was responsible for carrying out the law’s key provisions: education and training, loan guaranty for homes, farms or businesses, and unemployment pay. Before the war, college and homeownership were, for the most part, unreachable dreams for the average American. Thanks to the GI Bill, millions who would have flooded the job market instead opted for education. In the peak year of 1947, Veterans accounted for 49 percent of college admissions. By the time the original GI Bill ended on July 25, 1956, 7.8 million of 16 million World War II Veterans had participated in an education or training program. Millions also took advantage of the GI Bill’s home loan guaranty. From 1944 to 1952, VA backed nearly 2.4 million home loans for World War II Veterans. While Veterans embraced the education and home loan benefits, few collected on one of the bill’s most controversial provisions—the unemployment pay. Less than 20 percent of funds set aside for this were used. In 1984, former Mississippi Congressman Gillespie V. “Sonny” Montgomery revamped the GI Bill, which has been known as the “Montgomery GI Bill” ever since, assuring that the legacy of the original GI Bill lives on, as VA home loan guaranty and education programs continue to work for our newest generation of combat Veterans. In 2008, the GI Bill was updated once again. The new law gives Veterans with active duty service on, or after, Sept. 11 2001, enhanced educational benefits that cover more educational expenses, provide a living allowance, money for books and the ability to transfer unused educational benefits to spouses or children.

Getting Paralyzed Veterans Walking Again with Indego®

New VA Program offers eligible veterans an Indego® Exoskeleton at no cost.

What is Indego?

A robotic device that enables veterans to walk again.

Indego is an FDA-approved exoskeleton worn around the waist and legs that enables individuals paralyzed from spinal cord injuries to stand and walk, offering a new level of independence.

Indego can currently be used with spinal cord injury levels of T3 to L5 in community or home settings.

Free Indego Webinars

During the first Thursday of every month you can join a free live webinar to learn more about the Indego and hear from a veteran who owns a device already.

Contact us today to reserve your spot or find out if you are eligible to receive an Indego exoskeleton at no cost.

Origins of Old Sayings

Spill The Beans

Meaning: Reveal secret information unintentionally or indiscreetly.

Origin: This saying comes from Ancient Greece, where voting was done using beans. Citizens would put a white bean into the jar of a candidate they support, and a black one for a candidate that they do not approve of. However, on a few occasions clumsy people would spill the jars, revealing classified information.

Pull Out All The Stops

Meaning: Make a very great effort to achieve something.

Origin: Organ consoles have knobs that are called 'stops'. Without them the organist can play at a much higher volume, so 'pulling out all the stops' would let the organist squeeze the maximum volume out of the instrument.

This isn't quite a complete explanation. Classic pipe organs have many sets of pipes, with the stops controlling airflow to each set. With all of the stops pushed in, there is no air movement at all, so there's no sound. Strategically pulling out stops allows the organist to greatly influence the quality of the sound. Pulling out all of the stops activates all of the Meaning: Behave uncontrollably and disruptively.

Run Amok

Origin: The saying comes from the Malaysian word amok, which describes the bizarre behavior of tribesmen who, under the influence of opium, would become wild and attack people.

Resting On Laurels

Meaning: Be so satisfied with what one has already achieved that one makes no further effort.

Origin: Since ancient Greece laurel branches symbolized victory and success. This plan was closely tied to Apollo, the god of music, prophecy and poetry. Laurel branches were given to victorious athletes in ancient Greece and later to generals who won important battles, thus the term 'laureates' and the phrase 'resting on laurels'. In the 19th century, the term received a negative connotation to describe those who are overly satisfied with their achievements.

Eat Humble Pie

Meaning: Make a humble apology and accept humiliation.

Origin: In the Middle Ages there would be a huge feast after a hunt. The lord of the manor would receive the finest piece of meat, and the ones with a lower status would eat a pie filled with entrails and innards, which were also known as "umbles". Those who would eat the "umble pie" were considered to be humiliated, since it symbolized their lower status.

Hands Down

Meaning: Easily and decisively; without question.

Origin: Hands down is an idiom born from the world of horse racing. Think about it. You are so far ahead of the chasing pack that you, as the jockey, can sit back, relax, and still win the race even without your hands on the reins. Winning 'at a canter' is a similar expression also from the track, but this one is better, hands down.

Take The Piss

Meaning: mock someone or something.

Origin: Back in the day, when clothes were dyed with natural dye, stale urine was used as a mordant, which stops the natural dye from leaching out of the cloth. The textile industry needed all the urine it could get, so workers would go around and collect specially designated chamber pots full of urine from people's houses. It was probably the least desirable job at the time, so people who did it would often lie about their profession. And so the question was born from those in doubt: "Really? Are taking the piss?"

Sorry, it is true. Taking the mickey or mick also came from micturation which is another word for urination or taking a piss.

Wolf In Sheep's Clothing

Meaning: A person or thing that appears friendly or harmless but is really hostile.

Origin: The warning that you can't necessarily trust someone who appears kind and friendly on the outside is centuries old, dating back to the bible. In the English language, The King James Version of the Bible, from 1611, has this passage in Matthew 7:15: Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.

Veteran Copayment Cancellations and Refunds, March 2021

Earnest L. Hill, SrNSO (Lake City)

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) recently signed the American Rescue Plan (ARP) in March 2021. The new rule is that all Veterans copayments for medical care and pharmacy services provided April 6, 2020 through September 30, 2021 will be canceled. Due to the passage of the ARP, Veterans whom have paid copayments for medical care and pharmacy services provided April 6, 2020 to present should receive a refund from VA. The VA staff is working on a time line for issuing the refunds.

Once VA cancels copayment for medical care and pharmacy services incurred from April 6, 2020 to present, VA will resume mailing patient statements for informational purposes only. You are not required to make payments on the statements that you receive. All collections will remain suspended until October 1, 2021.

If you had collection actions taken prior to when statements stopped in April 2020, all collection actions have been suspended from April 6, 2020 and will resume until October 1, 2021. You will be notified prior to collection actions resuming.

If you had a balance on your account prior to April 6, 2020 payments are not due or expected until after October 1, 2021. If you are experiencing financial hardship are encourage to enroll in one of VA's debt relief programs. For information, visit https://www.va.gov/COMMUNITYCARE/revenue_ops/FinancialHardship.asp.

If you have a balance for care prior to April 6 2020, you can voluntarily make payments on your account by doing one of the following:

- ✉ Mail: in the payment with the attached payment coupon from the statement.
- ☎ Telephone: 888-827-4817 (patient account number will be needed)

You can still schedule appointments and communicate with your providers in the same manner you are accustomed to. The quality and availability of VA health care will not change during this time.

If you have any questions please reach out to your local National Service Officer.

Changes to SAH

The Specialty Adapted Housing Grant is a program to assist veterans and specific Service Connected impairments with adapting their house in order to make their living environment more suitable to their needs. There is a lifetime cap in value which has periodically increased to adjust to the current costs to actually perform the adaptations needed by the veteran. Almost all veterans entitled to the grant may use the entire amount of the grant as it increases. When the value of the grant has increased all veterans who are entitled to the grant may use the difference between what they may have used the total amount to perform needed improvement that may arise. However there is a limit to the number of times the grant may be used.

The VA has recently increased the grant value to $100,896 and they have increased the number of times the grant may be accessed from three to six. This means that some who have used the entire grant the maximum allowable amount of times may be eligible to adapt their house again if the need arises.

If you feel that you may be eligible to access the SAH grant again and you would like to try and do so please contact your Paralyzed Veterans of America National Service Officer and we will review your specific situation with you with completing any necessary forms in order to get the process underway.

Get Out Of the House. It's on Us!

You heard correct. We want our members to get out of their houses and into the community. We will reimburse you for what you spend (as long as budgeted funds last). See restrictions below*. PVA Central Florida is once again proud to present this program to our members.

PGA Hope Program

Here, is a photographic composition of the PGA Hope Program that is being held at the Royal Saint Cloud Golf Course in Saint Cloud Florida.

Professional Golf Instructor Jim Endicott leads this program giving instruction and guidance on proper technique, posture and Club handling to get the most effective performance out of a golf club. While golf pro Doug Holloway not only demonstrates other aspects of the short game as he is an expert at both putting and Sand bunkers!

Jim Endicott demonstrates how to properly hold a driver and engage the golf ball to maximize distance and accuracy. Jim's detailed instruction along with story examples of how widely known professional golfers have encountered issues, helps to ease the students of slight tension and apprehension. His spot on examples helps to solidify his points of instruction and provides clarity on proper golf techniques.

Doug Holloway expertly set up a putting course to enable students the ability to judge distance and accurately putt golf balls for Birdie! The unique training aids help to dramatically improve the students performance. Also noticed Doug demonstrating how to properly engage a golf ball that has wandered its way into the ominous and treacherous Sand Bunkers found throughout every golf course. Pay particular close attention to the "Sandollar" that Doug specifically created to help the golfer properly and accurately engage the sand before striking and to help the golf ball onto a proper course of direction and out of the sand trap. Doug truly lives by example as he expertly demonstrates every maneuver he preaches.

This 8-Week course of instruction is provided to Veterans free of charge to not only help improve participation but this program focuses on generating a relentless Positivity and attitude to mentally help the veterans focus on something mentally achievable and quite honestly, extremely fun.

Thank you to the Pros at Royal Saint Cloud & to the Project PGA Hope for their commitment to help Veterans ... this program is way more than about Golf!
